

FIRE HAZARDS TO BE SOUGHT IN INSPECTION

Public Building Inspection In Salem Will Start March 1

PLANS OUTLINED AT BUREAU MEETING

Fire Prevention Program Will Be Carried Into School Rooms

An inspection of public buildings, schools, business houses and churches will get under way here March 1 under supervision of Fire Chief Vincent Malloy and insurance company specialists with fire prevention as the chief objective.

Plans for the inspection were outlined at a dinner meeting of the Business Bureau last night at the Memorial building. More than 50, including guests of members, attended.

R. S. McCulloch, new president of the bureau, succeeding Ralph W. Hawley who recently completed two years as head of the organization, presided.

Annual Report Heard
Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, secretary of the bureau, presented a report of the organization's work for the last year.

Hawley, in a short talk, lauded Mrs. Baker's work and outlined objectives and plans of the bureau, stressing its value not only to business men, but to the entire community, whose interests are of first importance always in the bureau's activities.

The bureau pledged hearty cooperation with plans for the fire prevention campaign. Safety measures will be introduced into the school rooms in a unique manner. A representative of the inspection group, making his entrance as a clown or some other comic character, obtains the attention of the youngsters and then, through various means designed to evoke their interest, explains the dangers of fire.

Inspection Value Shown

A. B. Mehaffey of Canton, special agent for the Hartford Insurance Co., explained in detail the value of periodic fire inspection. The bureau also displayed considerable interest in a tentative plan for the proposed municipal water softener which city council is now discussing.

Details of the project were discussed by Mayor George R. Harhoff and City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff.

State Conservation Council In Session

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—Girded for battle Ohio sportsmen gathered here today for the annual spring meeting of the State Conservation Council.

Lawrence Woodell, state conservation commissioner, said the session was called by the council preparatory to adopting its propagation program for the year. Topics listed for discussion included legal lengths, bag limits, open and closed seasons and the operation of fish sanctuaries.

Anglers of central and southern Ohio have voiced strong opposition to suggestions that inland streams be closed to spring fishing this year, and lively debate was forecast.

Ohio Farmers' Week Opens at Columbus

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25.—Representatives of vegetable growers, beekeepers, sheep raisers and fruit growers organizations met today at the 25th annual Ohio Farmers' Week got into full swing.

A. J. Patch of Ohio State university's agricultural extension department said that 1,014 men and 267 women defied a blustering, rainy day yesterday to register for the opening.

New Yorker Recommends Boy Scout Program As An Antidote For War, Crime

LISBON, Jan. 25.—The Boy Scout program as an antidote for war and crime was recommended by O. H. Benson of New York City, national director of rural scouting, in an address at the annual meeting of the Columbiana county scout council here Monday night.

Garbed in a khaki uniform with a row of service ribbons crossing the top of his tunic, the tall grey haired scout leader illustrated his point by telling of an interview with Gerald Chapman, just before the notorious criminal was executed.

Cites Two Reasons
Enlarging on this point, Benson told the 125 men and women making up his audience that the prison cells are overflowing today for two reasons. "The first is that the prisoners found it hard to meet the best men in their community when they were boys. The second is that they were never invited to join an organization whose objective was character building."

Citing the case of another nationally-known criminal the speaker said, "When little country-boy John Dillinger was born he came clean from the hand of God as any of us. Lack of Christian contacts, lack of scout advantages, made him what he later became."

Commenting on the work of J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Benson praised his work in curbing crime and substituting a high type of law enforcement officer as juvenile heroes instead of criminals. But in doing so, he also condemned what he referred to as the "mop-up" system.

"Hoover's budget last year was $5,800,000 because we, as a nation, have believed too long in the 'mop-up' system, instead of the prevention system."

"It's too late to make a fine citizen out of a man after 21 years of age," Benson declared in another part of his address. "You and I know that the habits established between 9 and 15 years are the habits which are ours now for the most part."

Explains Rural Scouting
Speaking of rural scouting, a phase of the program in which he is particularly interested, Benson recommended hikes by scouts into the rural areas for the purpose of contacting farm boys and telling them how to establish scout troops among themselves.

Benson was preceded on the program by Rev. Father James (Continued on Page 8)

Salem Legislator Strikes Back at State Purchasing Agent

HIGH OHIO COAL BILL IS SUBJECT

Variation In Fuel Prices Explained; Meantime, State Quiz Deepens

State Senator John Taylor of Salem, one of the "hatchet men" of the upper house, in a statement issued here today, hit back at State Purchasing Agent Glenn Horn's defense of Ohio's coal bill.

Horn yesterday charged the senate investigators took an isolated extreme high in connection with the state and an isolated low for Cleveland when they charged Ohio paid $1.75 a ton while Cleveland paid 88 cents.

Pointing out that "Horn said the reason the state paid a 'fair price' for coal was because the administration wanted to keep the miners off relief," Senator Taylor said: "Mr. Horn should read the transcripts of the testimony given at the hearing, because they will reveal that the 'dealer' who sold the coal to the state testified that he paid the mine about the same price as did the City of Cleveland."

Explains Difference
"In other words, the transcripts will reveal that the mine received about the same price in both cases and that the reason for the difference was because the dealer, or go-between, charged an extra dollar on each ton of coal sold the state."

Senator Taylor charged that "the people whom they are really trying to keep off the relief rolls, are the political go-betweens of the administration."

"If the state wants to pay a fair price," Taylor asks, "so that the miners may receive adequate wages, why doesn't it pay the 'extra money' to the mine instead of the political go-betweens of the administration?"

Graft Probe Deepens
A senate finance committee member's assertion that the state paid 30 to 300 per cent too much for medicine and drugs in welfare institutions brought indications that the upper chamber's graft hunting group might probe affairs of the state welfare department.

The Associated Press reported today, Sen. William B. Foss (D-Mercer), in making his assertion before the finance committee as it began consideration of supplemental appropriations for various state departments, declared that he was "unalterably opposed to providing additional funds for the welfare department because of its paying these unnecessarily high prices."

The seven-member investigating committee is expected to meet Wednesday. Chairman J. Ralph Seidner (D-Mahoning) made no comment on reports the group would focus attention on the welfare department, indicating only that the committee might again subpoena State Purchasing Agent Glenn Horn.

Horn took issue with the committee's statement that the state was paying exorbitant coal prices, bringing the reply from Senator Taylor.

Estranged Husband Flies To Attend Miss Pinchot's Rites

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—William Gaston, estranged husband of Rosamond Pinchot, was enroute here from Colorado by air today for the funeral of his actress wife, who took her life on her leased Long Island estate yesterday.

Amos Pinchot, socially prominent attorney, father of Mrs. Gaston, announced the funeral service would be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow—the 10th anniversary of Miss Pinchot's marriage—at the town house of her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Minton Pinchot, first wife of Amos Pinchot.

The Gastons separated amicably several years ago, Mrs. Gaston living with her two young sons, William 9, and James 6. Friends said the collapse of this marriage had affected her deeply.

The 32-year-old actress, tall and golden-haired, slipped out of her estate near Old Brookville early yesterday morning, attached a garden hose to the exhaust pipe of her car, and led it through a car window. She was found dead, seated in the rear, all other windows closed and the ignition switch on.

Death was caused by carbon monoxide poisoning and was officially listed as a suicide by authorities.

She left two notes, addressed to relatives and friends. Police and the family kept their contents secret.

Rosamond Pinchot achieved nationwide attention at the age of 17 when Max Reinhardt, the producer, selected her, an untrained school

Six Men on Their Way to Die

Olin Sanders, warden, was fatally stabbed, faced the camera, probably for the last time. All are doomed to die. Left to right, top, they are William B. Woods, who admitted he was the brains of the escape; Roy Suttles, 28, and J. V. Bair, 27. Bottom, Herbert Moorman, 41, Detroit, Mich.; Clayton Crans, 28, Rochester, N. Y., and George Wingard, 22.

PRISON TERMS ARE METED OUT

Judge Lones Passes Sentences On Seven More At Lisbon

LISBON, Jan. 25.—Judge W. F. Lones passed sentence today on seven men who appeared before him in common pleas court following indictment by the last session of the Columbiana grand jury.

William Culler, 82-year old Salem man, charged with taking indecent liberties with a minor female, was given a suspended sentence of 60 days in the county jail and fined $100 and costs.

One other Salem man, Jay Bailey, appeared before Judge Lones. He was sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail and fined $100 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of uttering and publishing a forged instrument.

Faces Prison Stretch
Changing his plea from innocent to guilty, Joseph Horner of East Liverpool, indicted on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent, was sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years in the Mansfield reformatory.

Clark Jones of Wellsville, indicted on a similar charge, was given a like sentence when he entered a guilty plea.

Two other Wellsville men, Walter McCarty and Lester Clark, who were jointly indicted for auto theft, were placed on probation for three years after Judge Lones had heard their guilty pleas.

Charge Is Changed

At the request of Prosecutor Karl Stouffer, a charge of uttering and publishing a forged instrument returned by the grand jury against Henry Smith of East Liverpool was nulled and a new one filed charging Smith with obtaining money under false pretenses was filed.

The East Liverpool man pleaded guilty to the new charge and was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in the county jail.

BREAKS FAST

Episcopal Clergyman Aids Physically By Eating Food Served At Hospital

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 25.—Doctors agreed today that it was "still too early to know" whether the Rev. Israel Harding Noe would recover from the ravages of 22 days of fasting.

"He is coming along as well as could be expected," the doctors said, and "we have fair hopes that he will recover."

The 47-year-old clergyman entered a hospital Sunday night and an intravenous injection of a saline and glucose solution broke the fast he began Jan. 2 in the hope of proving earthly immortality was possible.

His nurse reported yesterday that he consumed the juice of six oranges, ate the pulp, drank several ounces of water.

SENATE CHIEFS MAY ABOLISH HOLDING FIRMS

Senators Barkley and Wagner Forecast Easy Sailing For Proposed Legislation; Glass Drafts Bill

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The anti-lynching bill still was going strong in the senate today despite administration efforts to end it by holding night sessions.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) held the floor to continue the steady stream of oratory which he and other southerners poured forth without a break yesterday from 11 a. m. to 10:10 p. m.

It was the first evening session of the year, held on the fifteenth day of the filibuster. Senator Connally (D-Texas) said, however, the southern bloc was in shape to speak indefinitely.

Friends of the legislation declared they would hold the bill before the senate until it was passed or laid aside by vote. They contended they still had a majority.

Forecast Is Made
Senator Byrnes (D-SC) forecast it would be sidetracked by the end of the week.

Many observers expressed the belief the southerners would win in view of an announcement by Pepper that he was one of 24 senators who had "solemnly covenanted" not to let the bill pass.

Pepper yesterday called the bill a slap at the south, a violation of the constitution, contrary to Democratic principles, out of harmony with the spirit of the New Deal, contrary to the principles of true liberalism, and a "tragic prostitution of the processes of government."

Meanwhile legislation piled up. Administration leaders held back a conference committee's agreement on the administration's housing bill lest it would be used to aid the filibuster.

Hearings on a $476,000,000 two-year road appropriation bill began before the house roads committee despite a plea from President Roosevelt that highway expenditures be reduced.

Play To Feature Baptist Program

A play entitled "Thoughtful Ann" will be one of the features of the fourth session of the School of Christian Living to be held at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the First Baptist church.

Class sessions on "What Baptists Believe" and "Better Churches" will precede the play, which will illustrate the theme of the evening.

A series of travel motion pictures will be shown by F. F. Wells, following the play. Many of the pictures are in color.

The cast of the play is as follows: Thoughtful Ann, the Negro cook, Mrs. Frank Brudery; Silas, the Negro hired man, William Bennett; Mr. Allen, a successful business man, Mrs. Alice Betty; Mrs. Allen, his wife, Miss Betty Hinkley; the Allen's daughter, Martha Hinkley; the Allen's son, Walter Taylor; Parson Jones, Rev. S. Talmage Maggard.

The "Little Regal Quartet," composed of Donna Robert, Walter and Ruth Regal will sing in the play as the "Little Colored Quartet."

CANTON, Jan. 25.—Among ordinances passed by council last night was one designed to eliminate the sale of beer and liquor in certain business districts. The ordinance prohibits the establishment of new dealers within the area but allows the present dealers to continue as long as their present license is in effect.

The two most controversial measures being considered by the body, the proposed adult registration ordinance and the bill to effect complete closing of liquor establishments on Sundays, still were not acted on.

Among the letters approving the proposed legislation was one from the William McKinley Klan No. 62 of the Ku Klux Klan. The letter said the group represented 5,000 Canton citizens.

LITIGATION IN THE U. S.

"We knew all along what it would be," blandly said the special assistant U. S. attorney general prosecuting anti-trust charges against 16 midwest oil companies when the jury returned a verdict of guilty after only nine hours of deliberation.

Evidently, the truckloads of documents sent to Madison, Wis., for the trial and the elaborate setup of the defendants in what has been described as the most important anti-trust case since the Standard Oil trust was busted had their effect on the jury of small town businessmen and farmers.

Unable to make head or tail of a legalistic maze the experts, themselves, scantily understood, the jurors took a crack at big business and settled down to wait for spring, secure in knowledge the case would be appealed anyway.

ABOUT THOSE BUTTONS NOW—

An enterprising interviewer persuaded the Baroness Leda von Wrangell, who ranks right up there among the landless Russian nobility, to tell how she imagines American men would look clothed in uniforms of the czarist days back home. It was pretty terrible.

Maybe the baroness hasn't heard yet about the important new ideas in men's clothing—nothing crackpotish, but really sound. It's buttons on vests (the inside) and shirts (the outside) to hold up trousers, just as little boys hold up their abbreviated pants with buttons on their waists.

Lin Yutang talks about this in his book "The Importance of Living." Readers of the book are talking about it too—and this is a prophecy—something will come of it. It's a pity Baroness Leda, instead of wanting to dress up American men in gold braid and tight boots couldn't have said something to the point about something that really matters.

A "VICTORY" FOR FLOOD CONTROL

The decision upholding legality of the TVA turns on the point that the government is interested primarily and constitutionally in flood control and development of navigation.

But the cheering section shouting "Hurrah!" for the decision is full of public power evangelists who don't give more than half a hoot for flood control and don't know beans about navigation.

This might be puzzling, but it's not. For the country knows by this time that the strategy of the power drive is to build power dams, catch-as-catch-can, and then confront the opposition with a fait accompli. They know and the opposition knows the dams will not be torn down once they're built, even though authority for constructing them be obtained on the pretense of helping starving Armenians.

Possibly this is shrewd fighting, but it is not good government. On that summary the public, which contends it has a right to decide the public ownership question for itself, rests its case.

THAT NEW MORAL CLIMATE

What the President has called, wishfully, the new moral climate of America seems to be shedding ultraviolet rays.

Besides the White House sunnings taken by various businessmen in therapeutic doses, with results still to be determined, there has been this isolated instance of benefit:

Tom M. Girdler, who has been on the giving and taking end of a good many bitter sallies in the futile bickering between government and business, turned to mild words in a speech to fellow alumni of Lehigh university. His soft answers to the new deal's wrathful accusations deserve attention.

For they prove, if further proof be needed, that the business bark is willin' if the political pegotty is ready. "After all," as Mr. Girdler pointed out, "the Ship of State and the Ship of Industry are striving to reach the port of prosperity by the shortest, safest and quickest route. They must chart parallel courses."

This time a year ago there was tentative talk of an era of good feeling in the United States. It does not seem too optimistic to believe an unexpected jolt of misfortune has revived that possibility. It wouldn't be the first time misfortune has accomplished the seemingly impossible.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—Variety, unconsciously perhaps, sounded the final death knell of vaudeville recently with an inconspicuous item. It recorded how seven former standard acts went into a Jersey cabaret for the evening for a total of $12.50, to be divided among them.

Several were $200 a week performers in better days. The few remaining booking offices find it difficult to flush out a complete bill. Even the Palace corner is deserted by "lay-offs." The only vaudeville spots are at the Roxy and Loew's State and then only for top acts.

The plight is worse for the dumb-acts—acrobats, trapeze artists, jugglers, wire and rope walkers. They had no recourse, as had many others, to small bit roles on the radio and screen. About all they could do was to find odd jobs such as dish washing.

The majority of headlines are in Hollywood, and while some have done all right there are not many who have caught the brass ring in the manner of Jack Benny, the once two-a-dayer. The future is indeed bleak. Even though vaudeville comes back, it will have to have a new crop of artists.

Vaudeville died of sameness. No one changed his act. Such skits as Victor Moore and Emma Littlefield's were precisely the same for 20 years. Not a single change in line or gesture. Eva Tanguay, a high priestess of the box office with plenty of umph, sang her "I Don't Care" so long that when she appeared often the entire audience would join in every verse and chorus. The astonishing thing is that patrons stood for such repetition so long.

Save for the late Don Marquis, Mark Hellinger is about the only columnist to quit the game of his own accord. He accepted a story editorship in Hollywood. Hellinger in his valedictory shed no tears for the Broadway he was leaving. He declared he paid right back into the street what revenues he acquired for glorifying it and didn't owe it a penny. The fact is Broadway owes the gossip type of columnists a lot. They have continued to beglamour it long after only the dead shell remained.

Rex Beach has almost completely deserted New York for his agricultural experimentation near Sebring, Fla. He comes to town now and then at insistence of editors who try to pry a short article or story out of him between celery crops. But so interested has he become in his new work that writing has become increasingly arduous. Yet habit is strong and he continues to go to his typewriter a couple of hours a day.

Another writer from whom it is difficult to coax stories is Joseph Hergesheimer. Most editorial rooms welcome his output, but he, too, has become a country gentleman on expansive acres near Philadelphia. More than any other writing fellow, he lives the elegant life of the English landed gentry. The young square in Tory Hall and all that, even to driving to the village for the morning post in a dog cart behind a spirited cob. His vision is thoroughly aristocratic and his house a treasure trove of rare art objects. Also his tweedy riding costumes are just dandy for the descriptive pen of Beaunash.

Nothing much is said about the superiority complex but it exists and I am completely awed by it. Hergesheimer crystallizes the idea. Although frankly he does not affect me pronouncedly. A better example is Augustus John, the English painter to whom I was introduced by Frazier Hunt in London. He is as bright with legend as is his shiny beard. One of those booming-voiced, towering figures with doubly magnificent brows and the majesty of a Michaelangelo. His presences my voice, ordinarily deep and resonant goes into the upper register of a Vienna choir boy. All my thoughts ricochet in a pin-wheel flurry. I remember that one of my asinine questions was to pip-squeak where he bought his gaudy smock. There were other idiocies just as marked and the more he gazed at me in unflinching silence the more garrulous I became. Richard Mansfield affected me the same way one time when I went to interview him in his dressing room. I was almost as uncomfortable as the day I was forgotten from an opera box.

Those perky smock bars with modernistic fronts, circular counters and high short-backed chairs, French fashion, increase with the recession. I notice one on lower Lexington called "Plaque de la Concorde" which has the latest issues of Paris Midi and Excelsior on hand. Still another is tucked in the basement of an exclusive block on the Gold Coast. They seem to have only a cocktail hour and night-cap trade. Indeed the wrong people dropping in are discouraged.

THE STARS SAY : For Wednesday, January 26

The lunar and mutual aspects for this day indicate a fairly fortunate period, with matters moving successfully toward high ambitions. It is a safe time for approaching those in power and authority for favors, increase of salary or other benefits. It is rather fair for writing, publishing, advertising, speculation, promotion, but keep a vigilant eye out for schemes, plots or undercover entanglements. Private affairs will be lively and happy, with much of a social, domestic or affectional interest. Friendship may play an important role.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a very active and prosperous year, with promotion, honors and some token of preferment or esteem. It would be well to keep alert to treachery, plots or an element of mystery or conspiracy.

A child born on this day may be efficient and ambitious and should rise in life through its kindly and generous nature. There may be an element of subtlety or intrigue, with proclivities to the deep and profound.

HEALTH

RED NOSE

AT ONE time or another almost everybody has suffered from an annoying skin

believed that a red nose was always the result of excessive drinking of alcoholic beverages. Of course, this is not the scientific or correct explanation.

Chronic digestive disturbances, anemia, menstrual and uterine disorders may be responsible for the red nose. Continued exposure to cold winds and changes in weather may promote this unwelcome ailment. Occasionally it can be traced to nervousness or the excessive use of tea, coffee and other beverages, including, of course, alcoholic drinks. As a rule, redness of the nose is found in a person who leads a sedentary life, taking faulty food and a poorly-balanced diet. He is apt to indulge in rich, starchy food and be fond of pastries, pies, cakes, macaroni and other similar foods.

Omit Starches

To get rid of the red nose, the sufferer should omit from the diet all starchy foods. Salts, peppers and spices, as well as alcohol, tea, coffee and other stimulating beverages, should be used in the greatest moderation. It is well to drink at least six glasses of water a day. Daily bowel action is essential. Any tendency toward constipation should be corrected. If necessary, mineral oil or a similar lubricant should be taken. Colonic irrigations are sometimes beneficial.

If the victim suffers from anemia, it is well to include foods rich in vitamins and minerals. The doctor will prescribe the necessary tonic and other medications that may be needed. Do not resort to the use of any medicine unless it has been prescribed by your physician.

If you have a red nose, go to see your doctor. This is the only safe way to prevent the disorder from becoming chronic. As I have said, if redness of the nose is neglected in the beginning, it becomes chronic and difficult to cure. If you carefully follow wise medical instruction, you will be relieved of your embarrassment.

CATHARTICS GOT YOU DOWN?

If you have common constipation, due to lack of bulk in the diet, harsh purgatives don't get at the cause of the trouble. Often they leave you weakened. It is better to eat a natural laxative food. Try regular breakfasts of Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains vitamin B—the intestinal tract's great tonic. And All-Bran provides "bulk." It absorbs moisture, softens like a sponge, and forms a mass that aids elimination. Eat this crunchy cereal every day, drink plenty of water and join the "regulars." Made by Kellogg at Battle Creek.

"GIVE HER WINGS" by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER XXV.

Julie paid a check for four cocktails that would have bought her a hat in Fayette.

At the moment that the thought occurred to her, several other ideas proving mathematics thrust themselves upon her.

There was the matter of the cost of her immediate residence. After Thursday she was no longer the guest of the Cook-Walters company.
Her fine suite at the Consular would belong to someone else and she knew she could not afford to keep the room herself until Friday.
She had no idea what the tower suite cost and she thought wisely it would be better if she didn't.

What if Stanley didn't call her there before she left on Thursday?
And if she wasn't leaving for Fayette on Thursday, would Cook-Walters buy her tickets back to Fayette? She decided that she would buy her own tickets, call Stanley Lombard herself and tell him that she was going to be out of New York Thursday night and she could meet him somewhere. She could stay at the Y. W. C. A.

There was the little matter of clothes to consider. In the clothes closet in New York she had riding breeches, a silk shirt, a leather jacket, two evening dresses, a wrap.
Her other dress she wore. She didn't even have a suitcase.

More of her precious hoard would have to be spent. She had already spent fifty dollars for the gray tulle gown. But after the luncheon that day, Mrs. Derwent had handed her a small envelope which enclosed a fifty dollar bill.

Another fifty had already melted away paying for little things, taxicabs, presents and the like. Well, she had plenty and there would be more.

Playing a little golf, dancing, tennis and swimming presented a series of problems. Nancy had said, "Anything goes," but Julie knew better.
She bought a rubber swim-suit because it cost only a couple of dollars. She hoped fervently, nothing serious would happen to it. For tennis she got herself a white play suit that cost more than the materials with which she could have made herself a half a dozen of them. A bright pink tweed skirt was matched with a paler pink sweater which she knew was darling and effective with her hair.

After those there were other needs:
flat-heeled sports shoes, opera pumps, socks, a night-gown and a reglisse. And a suitcase. She spent a sum of money that made her feel lousy inside to contemplate.

Her purchases she had sent to the Consular and moved from there to the humble Y. W. C. A. with an agony born of her conviction that this was her last humble move.

Stanley Lombard asked her if she'd mind meeting him at his office, which made the whole thing as graceful as could be managed.

They set off through New York trafficking at four o'clock that Friday afternoon and if you could see Julie Aldehyde sitting beside her host in his yellow car, her hat drawn low over one eye, you'd think that weekends on Long Island were long familiar to her.

You'd never have known that she was so excited that her heart tripped against her ribs and her mind was alight with a thousand eager eyes reaching out to take everything in.

And you'd never have known that she was rehearsing the lines she would say to Paul Hitchcock.
"Hello... isn't this fun? Nancy thought I should see Long Island before I go back to Fayette. I really didn't expect to see so much scrub oak... but some of the places are quite attractive, aren't they?"

She hadn't heard from Paul since Wednesday morning but she thought and hoped it was because Nancy had told him she was coming out for the weekend. She had waited as long as she could on Thursday to hear from him. The telephone had been silent.

Perhaps he was no longer houseguesting with the Lombards. Her heart skipped a beat.

The yellow car crossed Queensborough bridge and they were in Long Island. Julie was not charmed with her first view of the factories, and later of miles and miles of houses all exactly alike, close to each other, unshaded by trees, which is one's first introduction to the Island. After an hour they were on the highway and the speedometer climbed.

About six, Stanley proposed that they stop and have something cool to drink. Julie, who was counting the minutes to their journey's end, said she thought that was a fine idea.

They put their feet companion-ably on the foot-rail at the bar.
"I'm not going to get much of a chance to talk to you over the weekend," Stanley said, "and I've got some news for you."

"But why won't you get a chance to talk to me?" Julie returned. She would really have preferred to hear about the news.

"My dear girl! Aren't you prepared to be rushed off your feet?"
Julie said, "Tsk, tsk!"

"I suppose that's an old story to you?"

Wisely she said nothing.

"There are always a lot of men
around our place and Nancy has a prize for them in you. I'm warning
you!"

Wisely she said nothing.

"There are always a lot of men
around our place and Nancy has a prize for them in you. I'm warning
you!"

Julie felt better about it then. So, Nancy needed her as much as she needed Nancy.

"Don't you think you ought to let my popularity be a big surprise to me? Suppose you tell me what news you have?"

"Sure enough. You see I'm just like all the rest of 'em.... I forget what I was going to talk about when I look at those big eyes of yours."

"Then I'll keep reminding you.
What was it?"

Remember what I told you about a client wanting a stunt to be put on in department stores?
Well, we've been talking it over and it's practically all set. Two fifty a Reno E. Stutely, former chief of the voucher unit of the National Parli-Service, who diverted more than $75,000 of government funds to his own use, for which he created an imaginary C. C. C. project, is shown as he entered jail after being sentenced to six to twelve years. He was also fined $36,000.

customed to being forced to think of her answers. She was glad that Lombard hadn't started them until they had already arrived and she was safe from more.

Nancy received her as casually as though she were an old friend.
Or an unimportant guest. Julie wasn't sure. All things in Fayette seemed to be conducted on a different basis. When you had a girl friend come to visit with you, you both went upstairs and had a long chat and you told your guest what had been planned for her. You both knew how long your guest was expected to stay.

Julie liked the Fayette amenities
but she was ready to accept others that were as yet foreign to her.
She was so pleased with the room to which Nancy showed her that she was not concerned when Nancy didn't enter but merely stood at the door and said, "If there's anything you want, ring for it. I'll send my maid to you in a few minutes. You'll want to change."

It was better to be alone, Julie thought. Then you could explore things. She sat on the built-in bed painted a flat white like the modernistic dressing-table that spread out into wings that were book-cases. She touched the deep blue plaid wallpaper to see if it was gingham and not paper. She took off her shoes and stockings and walked on the white fur rug.
She sniffed the perfume of the flowers in white china bowls. In the mirror she frowned momentarily when she saw that the henna drapes and chair coverings were not complimentary to her hair.

Her blue dress was halfway over her head when there came a discreet knock at the door.

"Come in," she said.

A middle-aged maid came in.

"Good evening, Miss."

Julie said, "Good evening." She wondered what else she was expected to say.

Apparently nothing more was expected; the maid went into the bathroom that adjoined the bedroom. Julie heard her turning the taps in the tub. She opened her suitcase and took her dresses out and laid them on the bed. The maid came back into the room.

"Your tub is ready, miss."

Julie said thank you and went into the bathroom. She was nearly through her bath — delaying the process as long as possible to enjoy the sensuous pleasure of the scented water, the anticipation of leisurely dressing and the expectancy of what was to follow—when she realized that she had no idea of what she should wear. Did one dress for dinner every night?

Her fingers beat a tattoo against the porcelain tub while she considered the wisdom of asking the maid. How could she ask the maid when she didn't know what to call her? Why didn't people train their servants to introduce themselves?
You couldn't holler, "Miss!" or "Maid!"

11 years. Going to Catina Island, they encounter adventures strange to their small-town experience. Judge Hardy, played by Stone, is forced to postpone his expressed ambition to catch a swordfish to straighten out internal entanglements. When the vacation is suddenly interrupted by trouble at home it is Judge Hardy who again proves his right to be head of the family, by saving the family funds.

The second picture at the State is "Change of Heart", romantic comedy, teaming Gloria Stuart and Michael Walnen. Lyle Talbot, Delmar Watson and Jane Darwell have important roles.

A Golf Widower

The story concerns an earnest, hard-working young business man who resents being a golf-widower. His wife, woman golf star, is finally forced to choose between her husband and her hobby — so she leaves her husband. Her husband to win her back, has to win the championship match from her.

At the Grand the Number 1 picture is "Quick Money", featuring Fred Stone, Gordon Jones and Dorothy Moore. Stone, as mayor of a small town, is figured by a bunch of fake stock promoters as a sucker but he ends by teaching them high finance by methods they never thought of.

Harry Carey, Sally Eilers and John Bea' head the cast of "Danger Patrol", the other half of the Grand bill. The picture concerns the workers in the Texas oil field, the mer who transport and handle explosives used in the business.

Fogs, Small Pox Mark Week's Ohio Scholastic Cage Race

FEW UNBEATEN TEAMS REMAIN IN OHIO RACE

Four Top-Notch Class A Quints Knocked From Undefeated Ranks

By FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Jan. 25 — Ohio's high school basketball looked back today on a week of campaigning marked by postponement of contests because of fogs and small pox "scars," and found that the "clean slate" Class A clubs were few and far between, but that plenty of Class B quintets were riding high on undefeated records.

Columbus Central, Newark, Canton McKinley and Akron Central, all rated as probable state tournament material, skidded out of the unbeaten class last week for the first time, leaving the unblemished field to the defending champion Hamilton club, Akron North, Akron Buchtel, and Sciencetown.

Columbus Central's 10-game streak was halted 34 to 26 by Xenia's fine squad, which rang up its ninth win in 10 starts. Newark bowed for the first time in eight games to Massillon, 43 to 30; Canton McKinley's Bulldogs dropped a surprise contest to Dover, 25 to 23, and Akron North beat Akron Central 26 to 20.

Hamilton's Big Blue squad, proud wearer of the Ohio Class A championship, won its 37th straight contest, 10 of them this year, by handily Middletown a 30 to 22 setback, but the champs need nine more to tie the 46-in-a-row record of Dayton Braves.

The Class B champs, Upper Arlington, remained unbeaten as they tackled up their seventh straight at the expense of Plain City, 58 to 13, but a host of the smaller schools are undefeated and making strong bids for state tournament berths.

Friday's contest between East Akron and Bridgeport two of the eastern district's classiest, was called off when the Bridgeport team was fogbound and unable to make the trip up the river. The North Central conference schedule was disrupted by a small pox "scar," the Mt. Vernon-Ashland and Bucyrus-Gallion games being postponed.

Here's a glance at how some of the better teams are doing:

CLASS B LOOP SECOND ROUND IS UNDER WAY

First Round Champions Win As New Schedule Gets Started

The second half schedule of the Class B City Basketball league got under way at the Memorial building gym last night with the Columbians, Reich Trojans, Whit's Garage and Saxons emerging victorious in the four games.

The Columbians, winner of the first half championship, started off the new schedule by soundly trouncing the Christians, 33 to 11.

Ed Zilavy paced the Columbians to the triumph, scoring 11 points on five field goals and one free throw.

The Christians were on the short end of the score throughout the contest and were held scoreless in the second and third periods after tallying only two points in the first frame.

Like the Columbians, Reich Trojans also gained an impressive victory in the first start of the new round, defeating Demings, 27 to 12.

The Trojans flashed a fast-moving offense to take a nine-point lead, 12 to 3, in the first half of the contest. They were never in danger of falling behind.

Mike Oana, with eight points, set the scoring pace for the Trojans. Every member of the Trojan team saw action in the contest and broke into the scoring column.

Falling to perform up to par, the Trades Class suffered its worst defeat of the season in losing to Whit's Garage, 23 to 9. The Trades Class was one of the strong contenders for the championship during the first round.

The Garagemen spurred in the second half of the contest to gain their one-sided triumph after holding only a three-point lead, 8 to 5, at the intermission. J. Doyle and W. Doyle shared scoring honors for Whit's team with five points apiece.

Led by Schuster, who scored 11 points, the Saxons pulled from behind in the fourth quarter to spank the Baptists, 33 to 27.

The Baptists held the lead during the first three periods of the contest, but faltered in the final frame when the Saxons staged their rally.

A change in the Class B schedule for Thursday night was announced today by Joe Kelley, director of the league. The change will move the Saxons-Methodist game up to 7 o'clock and the Demings-Trades Class contest to 8:30.

Concealed Cave Where Abductor Hid Body of Ross

Cave Near Spooner, Wis., Where Federal Agents Found Bodies of Ross and Gray

NEW YORKER SCOUT SPEAKER

Sees Scouting As Antidote For War And Crime

O'Brien, director of Catholic Youth Organization and Boy Scout Chaplain in the Cleveland diocese.

Rev. O'Brien described an ever-spreading interest in Catholic circles in connection with scout work. He drew a sharp contrast with the youth of foreign countries, regimented for war purposes, and the boys of America who are privileged to join organizations with character building objectives.

"With the direct approval of the pope and the bishops," he said, "the scout movement has spread to the point where it includes 70 dioceses. It is proving more and more that we live in a Democracy and can break down the barriers that may result in heart-aches.

"In this time of strife, in this time of harmful influences," he concluded, "we do a noble service to our country and our God in aiding our youths: I urge those who make the Boy Scout program possible to continue their sacrifices because it will keep our boys from the harmful influence working in other countries."

3 Scouts Are Honored

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was the awarding of Eagle scout ratings to three county troop members. The scouts so honored are Deminic Papania and Carl E. Myers of New Waterford and Walter Holloway of Columbiana.

Introduced by O. B. Evenson of Cincinnati, deputy regional scout executive, the scouts faced the speakers while their mothers pinned the coveted trophies on their tunics. Twenty-one merit badges also glistered on their uniforms—each representing a step toward the achievement recognized with the award. Silver Beaver awards for outstanding scout work also went to Ralph Couch of East Liverpool and Conrad Berg, Leetonia.

Att'y Riddle Elected
Att'y Lodge Riddle of Lisbon, active for years in scout work, was elected president of the county council for 1938. Ralph Couch was chosen first vice president; Leo Holloway, Columbiana, second vice president; John Bauknecht, East Palestine, third vice president, and Frank M. Gardner, East Liverpool, treasurer.

The election in each instance was unanimous. A slate of nominees was presented by Att'y Joel Sharp of Salem, representing a committee appointed for this purpose.

Charles E. Felton of Lisbon, county scout executive, reported an increase of 109 scouts in the county membership during the past year. Felton's work as county leader was lauded repeatedly by the speakers. Two vocal selections by Mrs. Doris Ellis, Lisbon soloist, and group singing marked the musical phase of the program. John Coleman of East Liverpool led the guests in singing scout lyrics. Rev. C. W. Kennedy, pastor of the Methodist church here, gave the invocation.

The meeting was held in the American Legion home, with dinner served by auxiliary members.

U. S. FILES NEW SOVIET DEMAND

Again Ask Permission to See American Woman Held In Jail

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 — The United States made a new demand on the Soviet government today for permission for a member of its embassy staff in Moscow to see Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, an American woman being held there in connection with an espionage investigation.

The Soviet foreign office on Jan. 21 refused this permission for the time being on the ground that its investigation of Mrs. Rubens was not completed.

Secretary Hull instructed Loy Henderson, American charge d'affaires at Moscow, to address a formal note to Maxim Litvinoff, asserting that the United States is "unable to accept" further delay in allowing its diplomatic representatives to interview the woman in prison.

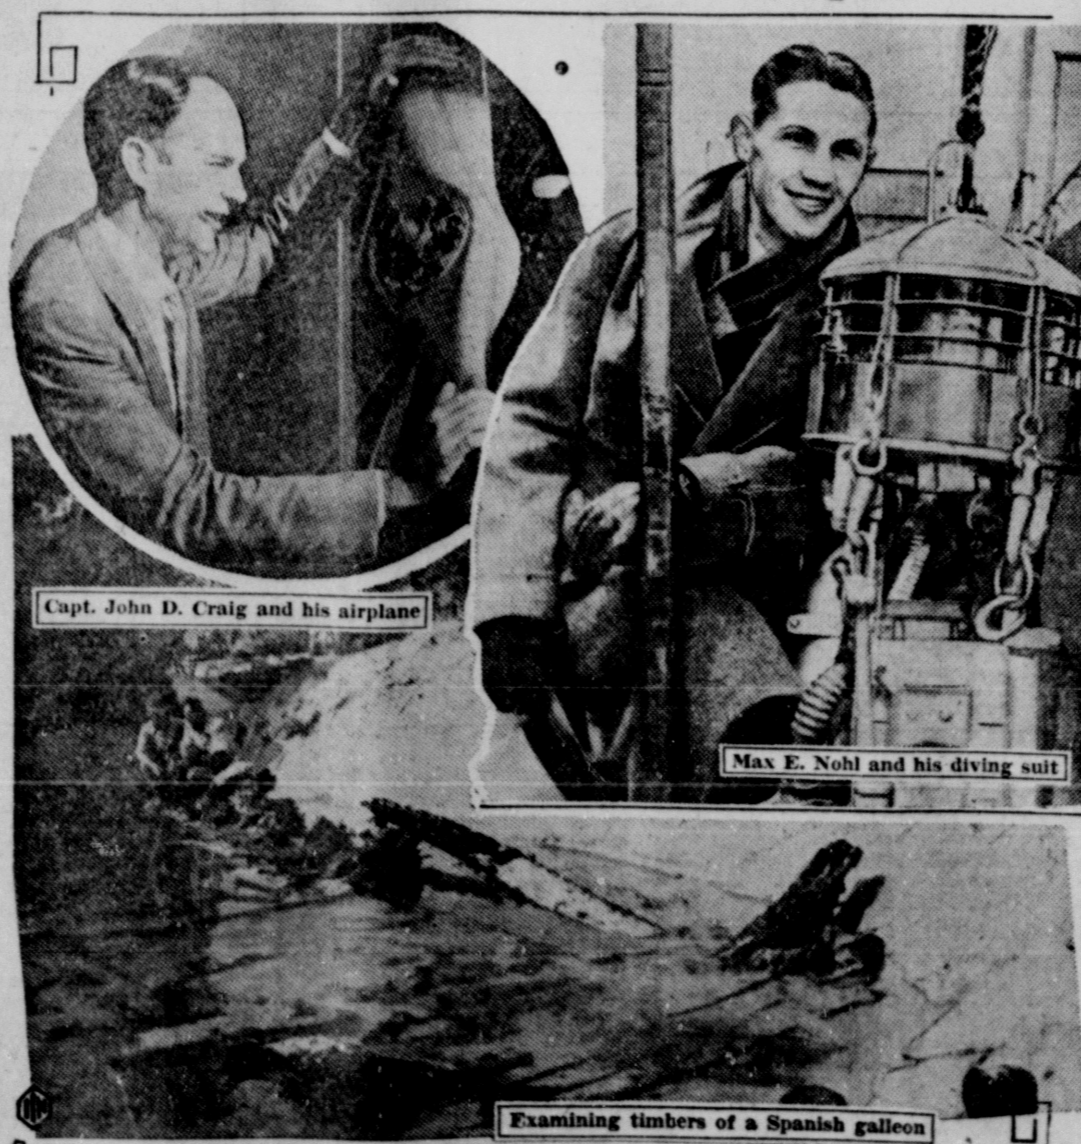

In his note, Henderson was directed to call to Litvinoff's attention the foreign commissar's letter of Nov. 16, 1933, to President Roosevelt in which Litvinoff promised that nationals of the United States would be granted rights, in the Soviet Union, of legal protection which would not be less favorable than those enjoyed by nationals of the nation most favored in this respect.

Not Counterfeit

COLUMBUS, Jan. 25 — County Auditor Newton A. Thatcher accepted a faded old $20 bill in payment for a dog license, but the bank said it was counterfeit.

Federal agents investigated, pronounced the bill genuine. Thatcher did a little sleuthing on his own hook. The abashed dog-owner confessed the bill got that way because he did his banking in a sock—but he'd also been wearing the sock.

Modern Expedition Seeks Treasure of Spanish Main

Spurred by tales of sunken Spanish treasure, Capt. John D. Craig is leading a "modernized" salvage expedition in Puerto Rico. Innovations of the trip are flights in an airplane to obtain exact locations of the mouldering ships, and descents in a new-type diving helmet, which recently brought the world's record (420 feet) to Max E. Nohl, now with the treasure-hunters.

Akron Worker Fired After Parole Quiz

AKRON, Jan. 25.—"Notoriety" as a result of testimony in the state parole investigation was listed today as a reason for the dismissal of Michael Rubenstein as city dump superintendent.

He was discharged by Service Director William F. Peters. John L. Harris, a Kent salesman, said that Rubenstein gave him $550 after Gov. Davis commuted the death sentence of Alva B. Conner, convicted Akron murderer, to life imprisonment. Rubenstein appeared as a witness in the parole probe.

ECONOMY PAYS THE BILL

Every Ohio Bell subscriber knows that telephone service today is faster, clearer, and more convenient than it was only a few years ago, yet it still costs little.

Economies have paid for these improvements—economies made possible by scientific research in the Bell Telephone Laboratories. Telephone poles last longer because these scientists found ways to prevent decay... millions of dollars are saved annually because they developed an efficient substitute for platinum in contact points... improved loading coils cost less and last longer.

These and a multitude of other improvements and refinements have kept the cost of telephone service low, while its quality and value have increased immeasurably.
